Take Your Child to the Library Day

In 2011, a day was dedicated among CT librarians to promoting library use for children and families. We here at Enfield Public Library use Take Your Child to the Library Day on February 7th to showcase all the great things available at your library. There will be something for every age child going on that day. After sampling all of the activities on this special day, we hope that you will make bringing your child to the library a regular occurrence. Visiting the library consistently shows your children that you value reading. The library is also a great place to enjoy free family friendly activities or to relax and connect with your children, creating special memories that will last a lifetime. Please join us on Take Your Child to the Library Day, a celebration of libraries and all of the wonderful experiences they offer to children.
